Typically, a person's astrological sign is used to show how one's actions and decisions are affected by planetary positions during different times of the year. The spas inside Leews Hotels in Tucson, Arizona, San Diego, California, and Santa Monica, California, are putting a spin on this concept by offering their guests a new cosmic consideration: treatments based on the four astrological categories (sun signs) of earth, water, air and fire. Capricorns (earth), who get stuck and suffer low energy at times, are offered a deep tissue massage or seaweed contour Vichy rainshower. Gemini's (air), who become overwhelmed and mentally exhausted, are invited to try aromatherapy or a scalp treatment. Scorpios (water), who have tendencies toward moodiness, are suggested a Watsu flotation massage or native hot stone massage. And those risk-taking Leos (fire) are encouraged to slow down with an ice cream pedicure or hydra quench cocoon.
